OHIO FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

By
Mrs. George Elliott
McCormick,
Director of Press

Few club women are more in demand all over Ohio than Mrs. Robert C. Morris, No. 2648 Kirkwood Lane, Toledo, state federation chairman of literature. She has spoken recently before gatherings of federated club women at Granville, Piqua, Bowling Green, Lima, Sandusky, Dayton and Fremont. She has accepted an invitation to address the spring conference of the Central Middle West, Southeast and Northwest districts. She daily is answering the inquiries of scores of clubs seeking assistance in the preparation of literary programs. She asks that all club secretaries mail to her at once a new or old year book.

Mrs. Morris suggests that clubs turn their attention next season to contemporary poetry, novel, drama and biography, with the salient purpose of developing an appreciation of the best in literature, "even as we have learned to recognize and to appreciate the best in art and music." She suggests further that clubs use as a basis three compilations, "Anthology of American Verse," "Best Short Stories for 1921," and "Contemporary Drama," which should be found in all libraries. Reviews of modern novels, she says should be based on a preliminary study of the technique of the novel.

Mrs. Morris now is engaged in giving a course in book reviews in Toledo. These are attended by several hundred women. In this course she has already very helpfully and interestingly reviewed "If Winter Comes," Wells, "Outline of History" and "Growth of the Soil."

Where to Get Your Book.
Mrs. John M. Henderson, of Martins Ferry, compiler of the year book, makes the announcement that 1,000 copies of the book have been mailed to club presidents, state and general federation officials, a number to Dr. Josephine Pierce Lima, and to each of the eight district vice presidents. If you have not received your year book write to these Ohio Federation Notes.

April 3, Mrs. Thomas Pierce, of Harrison, chairman of the federation's committee on education, will be the speaker before the Women's club at Steubenville.

Eaton is to have another summer kindergarten course. The Council of Mothers, with Mrs. May Parker, president, gave a comic opera, "Bob White." About 150 were in the cast. The affair was very successful. The proceeds will go for two experienced teachers. The club looks forward to the third year's successful work in kindergarten and supervised playgrounds.

Cocoon Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoon oil shampoo (which is pure entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It will make an abundance of rich creamy lather and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage. You can get Mulsified cocoon oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your drug store gives you Mulsified—Adv.

If the Saturday club at Logan has its way the public library is to be enlarged. The club and the mayor are cooperating. It donated fifteen volumes and some money to start a rental shelf. As fast as a book pays for itself by being rented out it is placed on the free shelf and another purchased for the rental shelf. At the last meeting of the club it was decided to continue the "plant-a-vine" movement, which was begun last spring. Logan club women are asking everybody interested in a more beautiful Logan to plant a vine and to ask friends and neighbors to do so. The Saturday club is planning a "Citizenship" day for July 4 for those of foreign birth attaining their majority.

A community club-house may soon be a reality at Shadyside, near Belaire, through the efforts of the Woman's club of that place. Plans are now under way to purchase property for the purpose.

The popular Lecture-Recital club at Martins Ferry recently conducted a very successful recital number in the Presbyterian church at Martins Ferry. Frederick Gunter, American tenor, sang the entire program. Mrs. Jesse Wolf Lipplhardt, of Martins Ferry, shared honors with Mr. Gunter as his accompanist.

BOWLING

Detroit Night at Tourney.

Toledo, March 23.—This is Detroit night in the American Bowling congress here and the majority of the first squad rolling will be by teams from the Michigan metropolis, of more or less ability, principally the latter.

Toledo, Cleveland, Port Clinton, Ohio, Iron River, Michigan; St. Louis, Dayton, Springfield, Illinois, Syracuse, Lansing, Toronto, Alton, Lexington, Erie, Lincoln and Columbus will also be represented.

None of the big time star fires last night were able to get even within speaking distance of the leaders. It lay for Little Menasha, Wisconsin, to hold top pin gathering honors all by its lonesome. The big man from the Badger state dropped the hardwood for a 2843 total. Bud Stars, of New York, got 2772. But one place in the matinee events leaders changed hands, this being sixth in the singles and 11 Martins of Chicago, rolled 678.

All that kept Canton from a place in the sun was good hits lost by L. Eisesser, a one-eyed bowler from the Ohio city, who rolled 666.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. A. R. Sammons and family wish to thank their many friends, for their expression of sympathy and especially department 11 of the Marion Steam Shovel company, and the Marion Rifle club for their beautiful floral offerings at the death of Mr. Sammons' mother. 1 p.

with hot milk. No matter how you eat it in Summer you will like it with hot milk in Winter. Contains all the natural sweetness of the whole wheat berry and hence needs no sugar. Better than mushy porridges for children because it encourages them to chew, thereby developing sound teeth.

For a warm, nourishing meal heat two Biscuits in the oven to restore their crispness; pour hot milk over them, adding a little cream and a dash of salt. Delicious with sliced bananas, prunes, raisins or canned fruits.

TRISCUIT is the Shredded Wheat cracker—a real whole wheat toast—and is eaten with butter or soft cheese.

WOMAN DIES WHEN HER HOME BURNS

Mrs. William Highland Suffocated Late Wednesday.

STEPMOTHER OF EDWARD HIGHLAND

Who Resides at No. 772 North State Street—Funeral To Be Friday Afternoon.

Mrs. William Highland, aged seventy-nine years, was suffocated when her home was destroyed by fire six miles east of Kenton Wednesday afternoon. Word of her death was received late in the afternoon by her stepson, Edward Highland, of No. 772 North State street, this city.

Mrs. Highland was alone at the time the fire started and James Thompson, a neighbor, rushed to the house on discovering the blaze. He broke open a rear door, found the woman on the floor and dragged her out. In less than an hour after the fire was discovered the house was burned to the ground. Mr. Thompson had to go through flames and dense smoke to reach the woman and he was burned about the face and hands in his attempt to rescue her.

John Highland, a son who resided with the aged woman, left the house at 10 o'clock in the morning to go for a load of wood. Three other children besides him are William, of Trumbull county; Mrs. Mary Eaton, of Kenton; and Mrs. Gertrude Brown, of near Latonia. Besides the stepson in this city she has another stepson, Henry Highland, residing at Mt. Victory. The funeral will be held at Kenton Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

FOOD LESSON No. 15

A Pint of Milk In Every Pound

For every pound of GOOD LUCK Spread-for-Bread a pint of full-cream milk is used.

Every pound contains in its milk alone the caloric food value of five eggs——or of four large chops, or half-a-loaf of bread.

Thousands of gallons of this nourishing milk are used daily in churning GOOD LUCK.

Full-cream milk only is used—pure and sweet—fresh from the thoroughbred, pedigreed herds on over 300 dairy farms in the Elgin Dairy District of Illinois. Jelke GOOD LUCK is wholesome and nutritious. It contains heat, energy, growth and repair food elements. Children thrive upon it; as do also adults.

It is at once a wholesome food delicacy, adding delicious flavor to the foods upon which it is spread; and also it is the woman's way of saving. Use—

CHURCH SOCIETY

Service at Central Christian. "The Waybill" was the subject of the revival sermon delivered by Rev. J. A. Persinger at Central Christian church Wednesday night. He took for his text Luke 14:15: "And they all with one consent began to make excuse."

"Some say I am not a member of any church because I do not want to associate with hypocrites in the church," Rev. Mr. Persinger said. "Now is this a valid excuse? If you are not willing to go into the church because of the hypocrites, then there is no place for you, even in this world, because you can not think of any place where you may not find men and women who are insincere. If you are not going to associate with hypocrites you must get out of the home, out of society, out of business, out of the lodge and out of the world. You will find hypocrites everywhere you look. Then why not be honest? Why not come into the church of Jesus Christ and try to get the hypocrites out instead of standing on the outside criticizing the church." One man went forward at the invitation. Tonight Rev. Mr. Persinger will preach on "Facts Won't Down."

Fred Carhart Class.

Mrs. Harley E. Koons was hostess to the members of the Fred Carhart Sunday-school class of Epworth M. E. church Wednesday evening at her home on Harcourt place. The evening was passed with games, music and contests. Thirty members were in attendance. The class will meet April 26 at the home of Mrs. Cecil R. Levens, of Ellis court.

Plan for Quilting.

Plans were made for a quilting to be held at the church next Wednesday, at the meeting of the members of the Fife Memorial Baptist Missionary society, Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William Osterholt, of Sugar street.

Woman's Missionary Society.

Roll call responses from the "Out-look" were given at the meeting of the members of the Woman's Missionary society of the First Reformed church, Wednesday evening, at the home of Mrs. W. E. Bartholomew, of No. 463 Mary street. Miss Ruth Schaeffer played a piano number and the lesson study was in charge of Mrs. H. E. Zimmerman.

Mrs. H. E. Zimmerman and Mrs. Asa Queen were appointed delegates to the Heidelberg classes to be held at Bluffton, March 29 and 30. It was decided to organize a mission band in the near future. Miss Grace Baughman and Miss Ruth Schaeffer were guests of the society. The next meeting will be held April 26 at the home of Mrs. Asa Queen, of east Center street.

The following officers were elected at the called meeting of the members of Fife Memorial Baptist church Wednesday evening at the church: Mrs. D. H. Taylor, church clerk; Mrs. E. H. Long, assistant church clerk; Mrs. William Riley, financial secretary; Mrs. Hiram Whipple, treasurer; James Bonser and Alta White, trustees; Mrs. Alfred Tocum, Mrs. J. W. Holman, Mrs. Bertha Brobeck, Mrs. Fred J. Sanderson, Mrs. William Gorenson and Mrs. Hiram Whipple, deacons; Miss Olive Brobeck, pianist; Miss Pearl Tuttle, assistant pianist; Mrs. F. J. Sanderson, New World movement treasurer; William Osterholt, chief usher; S. H. Morgan, John Frost, Alfred Alexander and Ralph Williams, ushers.

E. H. Long was elected Sunday-school superintendent; James Lumberton, assistant superintendent; John Frost, Edward Schott, T. W. Six persons were received into church membership at last evening's meeting.

Calvary Evangelical Church. "Sins of Omission" was the topic of Rev. C. L. Allen's sermon at the evangelistic services at Calvary Evangelical church Wednesday evening. The text was found in Zechariah 3:2: "She obeyed not the voice; she received not correction; she trusted not in the Lord; she drew not near to her God."

"To refuse to do the right is to do the wrong," Rev. Mr. Allen said. "To have the light on anything means to be responsible of living up to that light. The worst sin that the Bible speaks about is the sin of rejecting Jesus Christ. To refuse to pay a man an honest debt that you owe him is as great a sin as to steal that which belongs to him. Many people call sins of omission 'neglect' for ease of conscience."

Mr. E. E. Heininger, song leader and soloist sang "The Royal Telephone." The class prayer meetings will be held each evening for one half hour beginning at 7 o'clock. A children's meeting will be held on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, under the direction of Mr. Heininger.

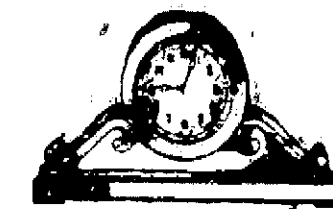

Sermon on Religion. Rev. John Brinker delivered a sermon on "Religion" at the mid-week Lenten devotions Wednesday evening at St. Mary's church.

Prayers on Conscience. Rev. James T. Maffin, pastor of the International Holiness church, is conducting revival services at the church, at the corner of York and Waterloo streets. Wednesday evening he preached on the subject of conscience and a large number answered the invitation to go forward. Since the beginning of the services about forty have gone forward. Rev. John Fleming, of Ashland, Kentucky, will arrive Friday and continue the services until April 2.

Presbyterian Aid. The members of the Aid society of the First Presbyterian church, met at the home of Mrs. E. A. Seffner, of south State street, yesterday, and sewed for the hostess, who at noon served fine menu.

The next meeting will be held next Wednesday all day at the church.

Mrs. James Duffey and son, Richard, of Blaine avenue, are guests of relatives in Columbus.

Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Druggists Guarantee First Pint Bottle of Allenburys to Show the Way to Complete Recovery.

Mr. James H. Allen, of Congress Avenue, Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work. He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, are dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called ALLENBURY, to others, who took it with what might be called unreserved success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers and instructed druggists to guarantee a full pint bottle as above stated. Schmidt & Company can supply you.—Adv.

WOULD RESTORE OLD CAPITAL OF PORTUGAL

Coimbra Sect of Government Soon After 1064.

COUNTRY FOR TIME HAD THREE CAPITALS

Coimbra Crammed with Legends and Memories of Historic Times.

Washington, March 23.—The proposal to move the capital of Portugal from Lisbon to Coimbra reported in recent dispatches following revolutionary activities, would not mean giving Portugal a new capital so much as restoring a very old one. This is pointed out in a bulletin just issued by the National Geographic society dealing with the important part Coimbra has played in Portuguese history.

"Coimbra, 120 miles north of Lisbon, was as truly a frontier town in its time, as Wichita, El Paso or Carson City," says the bulletin. "But the time was ten centuries ago, not less than one; and the Coimbraans defended their lines not against red Indians but against black Moors. Fighting the Moors was the old world's most popular outdoor sport in those days, and the flower of Europe's chivalry—Frenchmen, Englishmen, Dutchmen and Germans—helped at odd times to make Coimbra safe for Christianity and to keep it a white man's country. It fell permanently to the Christians in 1064 and was soon made the capital of the region which before long became the new kingdom of Portugal.

Had Three Capitals.

"When the Moors had been pushed farther toward Africa, Lisbon was made a seat of the court and for a time the kings divided their time among three capitals, Coimbra, Lisbon and Santarém. After Lisbon was made the permanent capital, Coimbra, by way of partial compensation, was in 1807 given the university which had been established in Lisbon in 1290. Except for short periods the University of Coimbra has since remained in its location on the site of the old royal palace. Until recently it was the only university in Portugal and even now it is the dominant educational institution. After Bologna, Paris and Oxford, Coimbra is one of the oldest and most noted universities in existence. Practically all of the great men of Portugal, poets, philosophers and statesmen, have studied there.

"Coimbra is crammed with legends and memories of heroic times—sagas by the Moors, intrigues of the court, and deeds of violence and blood that have been made the subject for the poets and playwrights of the world. Most known of such incidents, perhaps, is that of the beautiful Spanish, Inez de Castro, secret wife of Pedro, heir to the Portuguese throne. Across the River Mondego from Coimbra, near 'The Fountain of Love' she was murdered by courtiers, jealous of her influence. When Pedro came to the throne he had the actual murderers tortured to death before his palace in Coimbra. And then he staged one of the most unusual incidents in all history. He had the body of his murdered wife exhumed, placed on a throne and crowned, and compelled all his nobles to pass and do obeisance to the body. This queen who reigned after her death, as one Portuguese poet has expressed it, was then interred with great pomp in a handsome sarcophagus in the convent of Alcobaca where the body of the king now lies beside her.

An Old-World Pueblo.

"Coimbra is a city on the side of a hill—almost a bluff. From the farther bank of the Mondego it seems, with its white buildings rising tier over tier, like a gigantic old world pueblo. At the top of the hill rises the university, its gray clock-tower topped all else. In the foreground is the river in its bed of sand. All day long some of the comely women of Coimbra, colorfully dressed, stand in the river's edge beating their white linen on stones and plunging it into the incomparably green water.

"From the university-crowned hill the view is more spacious. The Mondego has been called Portugal's loveliest river, and the country around Coimbra its most beautiful region. In a broad curve the Mondego sweeps through flats and among low hills covered with the varying greens of olives and oranges, vineyards, fields of Indian corn and groves of poplars, while in the distance tiny white villages peep out from among pine-rod hills.

"There is no mistaking that Coimbra is a 'college town' whether the observer has viewed such communities in the old world or the new, one straggles upon bookshelves everywhere in the steep, narrow streets of the city, and the cafes are filled with unmistakable college types. Harsh-faced students, wearing their distinctive black jackets, are seen on all sides. There is little 'town and gown' spirit in Coimbra. For more than six centuries the people have had the university in their midst and it has grown to color the life of the whole city. Quiet orderliness is the keynote of the little city, and that is the reason, no doubt, why the Portuguese government is said to be considering transferring its seat from crowded, turbulent, commercial Lisbon."

MARTEL EPWORTH LEAGUE CONTEST ENDS

Crusaders Banquet Pilgrims, Winners of Contest.

Marion, O., March 23.—[Special.]—The Epworth League contest between the Pilgrims and Crusaders closed Sunday evening, March 5. The Crusaders banqueting the Pilgrims Friday evening, March 17, at the high school auditorium. A program was given by the losing side and consisted of readings, music and talks by four men from the Ohio Wesleyan university. Refreshments were served. The remainder of the evening was passed with games and contests. About 150 were present. John Neff, of north of town, is ill of pneumonia.

The girls and boys basketball teams of Crestline will play the teams of this place here, Friday evening. The Crestline boys defeated the Martels boys at Crestline some time ago and a lively game is expected here. The junior class will hold a box social after the game.

Mrs. Jacob Loyer who has been seriously ill, is improving. Sunday-school services will be held next Sunday morning at the Clyde reformed church at 9 o'clock and preaching at 10 o'clock by Rev. D. E. Tobbes, of Baltimore. William Neff is ill at his home with the grip.

REVENUES TO FALL BELOW THE ESTIMATES

The Income Tax Payments May Be $100,000,000 Less.

Washington, March 23.—Revenues this year will fall far below original estimates. Income tax payments made to the government on the first installment on March 15, may be nearly $100,000,000 less than the earlier forecasts of the treasury department.

Treasury officials said today that complete returns from all revenue collectors will not be compiled for a week.

Returns thus far made indicate that less than $50,000,000 has reached federal reserve banks. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon had estimated the total tax payments for the first quarter at $400,000,000.

On the basis of present figures, the slump in taxes for the whole year may show a decrease of between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000 below the expectation of the treasury.

TARIFF ON CLEAN WOOL AGREED UPON

Duty of Thirty-Three Cents To Be Imposed.

Washington, March 23.—A maximum specific duty of thirty-three cents a pound on "clean" wool formed the basis of an agreement reached today by Republican members of the senate finance committee on the wool schedules to be incorporated in the revised permanent tariff bill.

The agreement was the result of a conference between the committee members and Senator Gooding, Republican, of Idaho, and members of the "tariff bloc" of western Republican senators.

The proposed duty of thirty-three cents is the same as that carried by the Payne-Aldrich law, but is lower than that fixed by the present emergency tariff law, which is forty-five cents.

THE SICK

James Conley, who has been ill at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conley, west of the city, is reported improved today.

Ray, the eleven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pector, residing south of the city, is reported improving after an illness of flu, pneumonia and meningitis.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Street, of La Tourette street, this morning were called to Marengo by the serious illness of Mr. Street's father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Street.

Eunett J. King, of Lincoln avenue, who has been quite sick for the past six weeks was taken to the home of relatives in Columbus today, for treatment and to take a rest.

Arrest Raymond Morton.

Raymond Morton was arrested in Columbus Wednesday evening and brought here by Officer Thatcher on a warrant charging him with removing mortgaged property from the county. The affidavit for the warrant was sworn to by H. L. Shusser, who alleges he took a mortgage for $200 on an overland automobile of Morton which was valued at $400. Morton taking the machine away and going to Columbus. He will be arraigned later.

CHANGSHA RESIDENTS MAKE FIRECRACKERS

MAY BE SCENE OF THE LONG-DELAYED FIGHT

Between Forces of North and South China—City of Step-Climbing Wheelbarrows.

Washington, March 23.—Chinese despatches indicating that the important city of Changsha may be the scene of the long delayed battle between the southern and northern forces, make that one of China's many cities stand out for the moment from its fellows. The following bulletin from the Washington graphic society tells something of Changsha and its changing aspect:

"In China, if one desires to express high compliment of a person, he says the bulletin, 'the right thumb is stuck up in the air above a closed fist. To extend the little finger, though, is to suggest that the person in question is beneath contempt. When the Changsha man refers to his fellow citizens, he always resembles a patient about to have his thumb bandaged, for the man of Changsha is China's 'top-side-man.'"

"Yale-in-China."

"Capital of a hilly province, one part of which is occupied by a large lake which acts as a reservoir for the Yangtze floods, Changsha maintained its exclusion of the 'foreign devil' until the beginning of this century. Today it is closely linked with New Haven, for there is, just outside the rapidly disappearing wall, in which the inhabitants once took great pride, one of the best Christian mission schools in China, which is Yale's contribution to the education of the Chinese who can not come to America.

"In Hunan, the neorenaissance has exerted much power and Changsha was so well protected by the lucky constellation under which it was founded and by the Holy Hill which guards it that it was thought a profanation for the 'foreign devil' to enter. In 1910 there were serious riots, mainly directed against the growing commercial power of foreign firms but it had too its astronomical accompaniments, for it was the approach of Halley's comet which touched off the explosion.

Munitions for "Fourth."

"Long before Yale established the 'Yale-in-China' college and hospital in Changsha, the city was closely related to America for it was in the capital of Hunan that many of the firecrackers which formerly announced the independence day celebration were made. While maintaining its own independence, Changsha furnished the explosives which enabled the American boy to proclaim his 'Glorious Fourth.'"

"A large part of Hunan is an unworked field of anthracite and bituminous coal and at Pinghsiang, which is connected with Changsha by railroad, there is one of the mines which furnishes fuel for the great iron works at HanYang.

Produced Great Men

"Among the great men who have been among Changsha's chief products the most famous was General Tseng Kuo Pan, whose cooperation with 'Chinese Gordon' was largely instrumental in putting down the Taiping rebellion. General Tseng was not only a soldier and statesman but a literary man as well and his collected works of 156 books were edited by Li Tung Chang.

"Changsha lies on the projected line of railway which, when North and South are reconciled will connect Peking and Canton; and trains have already competed with the light draft steamers which make the 220-mile trip from Hankow. With about 500,000 inhabitants, it rules a province to 22,000,000 and is one of the cleanest cities in China.

"Many of the streets are long and straight and at one time the city itself was divided between two major streets. The bazaar are full of life and interest, some of the candies being famous for miles around.

Show Western Tricks

"One of the interesting sights of the city is the wheelbarrows that climb stairs. Some distance ahead of the regulation wheel there is another smaller one. In climbing over flagstone steps or bridges, the handles of the wheelbarrow rise above the next higher step. Then the wheelbarrow, which often carries three or four hundred pounds, sees-saws from wheel to wheel until the next level stretch of flagstone is reached.

"The Episcopal mission has a live Boy Scout troop and the visitor who watched tent-pitching, fire rescue, stretcher making and other Boy Scout activities would marvel at China's quick changes. For until after the Boxer trouble, Hunan's capital excluded the dreaded foreigner from its walls whose brick battlements, rising above the site of a formerly well constructed 202 B. C., were themselves built while Shakespeare was alive.

"Now, with foreign mission schools vying with the ancient university on the Holy Hill and with Boy Scouts teaching first aid to enlisted soldiers, the proud walls of the 'City of the Iron Gates' which withstood the Taipings are no longer respected and their Marceau bricks are going into modern homes."

EDISON GIRLS' GLEE CLUB GIVES PROGRAM

The Farmers' Exchange and Elevator held a meeting Monday in the opera house, at which time enough men promised to lend the company money to tide them over this financial crisis. The exchange is doing all its milking at Edison now but after April 1, the Cardington branch will have more helpers and will also make flour there.

The past two weeks there have been several cases of chicken pox and mumps in this school district. L. E. Wilson has torn down the old barn on his lot near the depot which was formerly used as a livery barn and will erect a large garage in which automobiles can be stored. This will be very convenient for those who go away on the train for a short time.

Postmaster Cunard is able to be at the postoffice part of each day after six-weeks illness.

CANADIAN MENNONITES IN UNIQUE RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT

One of the greatest religious migrations since the days of Moses now is in progress. From Canada to their new homes in Mexico 20,000 members of the Mennonite faith are traveling. Members of the sect were ordered by their bishops to sell their Canadian holdings, after the Mennonite leaders and the government had come to legal blows. This photo shows a group of the tribe and typifies the majority.

GROH GREATEST OF BASEBALL INFELDERS

New York Giants Strengthened by Acquisition.

SHINNERS DARK MAN IN MCGRAW'S WOODPILE

Roams All Over the Outfield, Hitting Record Large—Steals Fifty-Five Bases.

San Antonio, Tex., March 23.—There is no question whatever that the acquisition of Heinie Groh has given the New York Giants the greatest infielder in baseball. Even an ordinary third baseman would permit of the transfer of Frank Frisch to second to work with Dave Baneroff, and would insure the Giants of a sounder infield defense. And Groh is no ordinary third baseman.

So much for that. The Giants have been strengthened there beyond the fancy of even the most disordered imagination.

But to swing the Groh deal, McGraw was constrained to part company with George Burns, still a dwee outfielder, bluffer and base runner. He needed a man to range in between "fish" Meusel and Ross Young in the outfield, so he thrust a groping hand into the American association grabbed and came up with one Ralph Shinnars, then the property of the Indianapolis club.

Ralph is the dark person in Mr. McGraw's woodpile. If he makes the time all will be well. If not, it will be up to Bill Cunningham and Bill to prove that he can play major league baseball through a full campaign.

Has San Antonio by Tall. Shinnars has this part of the world by the tail and is swinging about his blonde in eccentric circles. To hear them tell it, he is the original subject for that touching ditty, "Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight?" He roams all over the outfield. In the American association last year, he hit far above .300 and stole fifty-five bases, in spite of a rather crude conception of sliding into a base. He has been in professional baseball just three years.

On their way back to the Queen City, the Reds are scheduled to play several exhibition games. Antolo Luque, in his first appearance on the mound in 1923, yesterday was defeated by the Fort Worth Cats to the tune of six to two.

Dallas, Texas, March 23.—This Speaker, idol of Texas baseball fans and one of the greatest outfielders in baseball history, may have to retire to the bench and content himself with being a pinch hitter and manager.

While no official announcement has been made, indications that the injury to his leg may force the peerless leader of the Cleveland Indians to take a long rest before a permanent cure for his injury can be effected.

After three games at Los Angeles, the Bruins will go to San Francisco for several games and will then start east by easy stages. Some releases probably will be handed out while the team is at Los Angeles.

"The government," said Daugherty, "can prevent unlawful interference with transportation. Coal is indispensable to transportation and therefore, the government can prevent interference with the production of transportation essentials."

"The government will see that the railroads perform their normal functions and it will not allow those functions to be disturbed by lack of things that are necessary or indispensable."

The government's hands are tied, however, until the strike actually goes into effect.

"You can't go into court and get an injunction to force a man to work, or to force one man to pay another man so much for his labor," said the attorney general.

Should Have No Fear.
The public should not be too apprehensive of the effects of the strike, it was pointed out. Not only does the tie-up come at an "inert time" of the year but it also comes at a time when stocks of coal are heavy.

Daugherty says the latest data shows that the nation has reserve stocks of coal sufficient to last sixty or seventy days.

Production in recent months has been among the heaviest on record.

The department of justice has a great number of reports on activities of both operators and miners in affected districts and those are all coming.

District Attorney Cline of Chicago, conferred with the attorney general this morning and Daugherty later said Cline had given him "valuable information" concerning the impending tie-up.

He hopes, he has declared, to have his well-oiled cabinet machine in working order within a week.

and gave bond pending their trial, except Dennis, and four men, reported to be out of the city, two of whom are named in connection with failure of state banks at Preston and Hoffman. Officials say they have no definite information as to the whereabouts of Dennis. He left Oklahoma City soon after resigning his office. In addition to a charge of accepting a bribe, he is wanted under a separate indictment, charging failure to close a state bank after he had found it to be insolvent.

The indictment against the governor and Dennis charged that Dennis found the bank insolvent and that the two, "having power, under the law, to determine the solvency or insolvency of the bank, did unlawfully, corruptly and feloniously accept $25,000 as a bribe or regard from John H. Reboild, an oil operator, under an agreement that the bank would be allowed to continue to do business while in a state of insolvency."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Frederick Cavendish, New York man of wealth, receives a letter from an old friend, Jim Westcott, begging him to come at once to Colorado, looking to go, he employs a lawyer, Patrick Larchet, to draw up a will leaving most of his estate to charity, with a more pitiable to John Cavendish, his nephew and only relative, a dissolute youth. That night Frederick Cavendish is murdered in his apartment. He will be longed, John Cavendish inherits the estate.

CHAPTER II.—Two months later, Enright informs John Cavendish of the existence of the will, and offers, for $50,000, to buy nothing of it. John agrees, Stella Donovan, newspaper writer, learns from Frederick Cavendish's valet that he is not the body found was that of his employer. She is invited by Patrick Larchet, of the Star, to follow up the case.

CHAPTER III.—Stella learns of the will from the valet, and offers, for $50,000, to buy nothing of it. John agrees, Stella Donovan, newspaper writer, learns from Frederick Cavendish's valet that he is not the body found was that of his employer. She is invited by Patrick Larchet, of the Star, to follow up the case.

CHAPTER IV.

Miss Donovan Arrives.

When the long overhead train paused a moment before the ancient box car that served as the depot for the town of Haskill, nestled in the gulch half a mile away, it deposited Miss Donovan almost in the arms of Carson, the station agent, and he, wary of the wiles of women and the ethics of society, promptly turned her over to Jim Westcott, who had come down to inquire if the station agent held a telegram for him—a telegram that he expected from the East.

"She oughtn't to hike to the Timmons house alone, Jim," Carson said. "This year is pay day up at the big mines, an' the boys are havin' a h— of a time."

In view of this disclosure, Miss Donovan welcomed the courteous acquiescence of Westcott, whom she judged to be a man of thirty-one, with force and character—these written in the lines of his big body and his square, kind face.

"Jim Stella Donovan of New York," she said directly.

"And I," he returned, with hat off in the deepening gloom, "am Jim Westcott, who plugs away at a mining claim over yonder."

"There!" laughed the girl frankly. "We're introduced. And I suppose we can start for the Timmons house."

As her words trailed off there came the sound of yelling, sharp cries, and revolver shots from the gulch below where lights twinkled faintly.

Laughing warmly, Westcott picked up her valise, threw a "So-long" to Carson, and with Miss Donovan close behind him, began making for the distant lights of the Timmons house. As they followed the road, which paralleled a whispering stream, the girl began to draw him out skillfully, and was amazed to find that for all of his rough appearance he was excellently educated and a gentleman of taste.

Finally the reason came out.

"I'm a college man," he explained proudly. "So was my partner—same class. But one can't always remain in the admirable East, and three years ago he and I came here prospecting. Actually struck some pay-dirt in the hills yonder, too, but it sort of petered out on us. It was broken in two by some upheaval of nature. We were still trying to find it when my partner's father died and he went East to claim the fortune that was left. I struck the vein again—when my last dollar was gone. That was a month ago. I wired my old partner for help, but—" He stopped, listening intently.

"They were hearing a small bridge over Bear creek, the sounds of Huskell's rollers growing nearer and louder. Suddenly they heard an oath and a shot, and the next moment a wild rider, lashing a foaming horse with a stinging quirt, was upon them. Westcott barely had time to swing the girl to safety as the tornado flew past.

"The drunken fool!" he muttered quietly. "A puncher riding for camp. There will be more up ahead probably."

His little act of heroism drew the man strangely near to Miss Donovan, and as they hurried along in the silent night she felt that above all he was dependable, as if, too, she had known him months, years, instead of a scant hour. And in this strange country she needed a friend.

"Now that I've had bare my past," he was saying, "don't you think you might tell me why you are here?"

The girl stiffened. To say that she was from the New York Star would close many avenues of information to her. No, the thing to do was to adopt some "stall" that would enable her to idle about as much as she chose. Then the mad horseman gave her the idea.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "I forgot I hadn't mentioned it. I'm assigned by Scribner's Magazine to do an article on 'The Old West, Is It Really Gone?' and, Mr. Westcott, I think I have a lovely start."

A few moments later she thanked Providence for her precaution, for her companion resumed the story of his coming claim.

"It's mighty rummy I haven't heard from that partner. It isn't like him not to answer my wire. That's why I've waited every night at the depot. No, it's not like 'Pop,' even if he does take his leisure at the College club."

Miss Donovan's spine tingled at the mention of the name. "Pop," she murmured, trying to be calm. "What was his other name?"

"Cavendish," Westcott replied. "Frederick Cavendish."

A jump almost escaped the girl's lips. Here, within an hour, she had linked the many eastern clues of the Cavendish affair with one in the West. Was ever a girl so lucky? And immediately her brain began to work furiously as she walked along.

A sudden turn about the base of a large cliff brought them to Haskill, a little street running up the broadening valley, lined mostly with shacks, although a few more pretentious buildings were scattered here and there, while an occasional tent flapped its discolored canvas in the night wind.

They went forward, Westcott watching and silent, the valley in one hand, the other grasping her arm. The narrow stretch of sidewalk was flanked with men, surging in and out through the open door of a saloon, and the two held to the middle of the road, which was lined with horses tied to long poles. Men reeled out into the street, and occasionally the sharp crack of some frillaceous revolver punctuated the hoarse shouts and bursts of drunken laughter. No other woman was visible, yet, apparently, no particular attention was paid to their progress. But the stream of men thickened perceptibly, until Westcott was obliged to shoulder their aside good-humoredly in order to open a passage. He released her arm and suddenly gripped the shoulder of a man passing. He was the town marshal.

"Say, Dan, I reckon this is your busy night, but I wish you'd help me run this lady through as far as Timmons; this bunch of lighthearts appear to be mulling, and we're plum stalled."

The man turned and stared at them. Short, stockily built, appearing at first view almost grotesque under the broad brim of his hat, Stella, recognizing the marshal, was conscious only of a clean-shaven face, a square jaw and a pair of stern blue eyes.

"Oh, is that you, Jim?" he asked, briefly. "Lord, I don't see why a big book like you should need a guard. The lady? Pardon me, madam, and he touched his hat. "Stand back there, you fellows. Come on, folks!"

The little marshal knew his business, and it was also evident that the crowd knew the little marshal. Drunk and quarrelsome as many of them were, they made way—the more obsequious saluting, but the majority in a spirit of rough good humor. The three passed straight through the surging mass in the non-crowded lobby of the disreputable hotel.

At the desk, wide-eyed with excitement, Miss Donovan took a service-woman proffered by landlord Pete Timmons, whose gray whiskers were as unkempt as his hotel, and registered her name.

"A telegram came today for you, ma'am," Peter said in a cracked voice, and tossed it over.

Miss Donovan tore it open. It was from Farries. It read:

"If any clues, advise immediately. Willing digging hard. Letter of instructions follows."

The girl folded the message, thrust it in her jacket pocket, then turning to the marshal and Westcott, gave each a firm hand.

"You've both been more than kind," she said gratefully.

"H—, ma'am," Dan deprecated. "That wasn't nothing!" And he hurried into the street as loud cries sounded outside.

"Good-night, Miss Donovan," Westcott said simply. "If you are ever frightened or in need of a friend, call on me. I'll be in town two days yet, and after that Pete here can get word to me." Then, with an adoring, honest gaze, he searched her eyes a moment before he turned and stroled to ward the rude clear case.

"All right, now, ma'am?" Pete Timmons said, picking up her valise. The girl nodded, and together they went up the rude stairs to her room, where Timmons paused at the door.

"Well, I'm glad you're here," he said, moving away. "We've been waiting for you to show. I may be wrong, ma'am, but I'd bet my belt that you're the lady that's been expected by Ned Benton."

"You're mistaken," she replied shortly.

As she heard him clatter down the stairs Stella Donovan of the New York Star knew that her visit would not be in vain.

The taler waited, leaning against the desk. Timmons came down the stairs, eager to ask questions.

"Lady friend of yours, Jim?" he asked. "If I'd a knowned she was comin' I'd a saved a better room."

"I have never seen her until tonight, Pete. She got on the train and Carson asked me to escort her up—It was dark, you know."

"What do you suppose she's come for?"

"Not the slightest idea; I take it that's her business."

"Sure; but a fellow can't help wondering, can he? Donovan," he mused, peering at the name; "that's Irish, I take it—hey?"

"Suppose so; you are some detective, Pete. I'll give you another clue—her eyes are Irish gray."

He sauntered across to the stove, and stood looking idly at the card-players, blue wreaths of tobacco smoke curling up from the bowl of his pipe. Some one opened the street door, letting in a babel of noise, and walked heavily across the office floor. Westcott turned about to observe the newcomer. He was a hairy, red-faced man, who had evidently been drinking heavily, yet was not greatly under the influence of liquor, dressed in a checked suit of good cut and fashion, but hardly in the best of taste. He bore all the earmarks of a commercial traveler of a certain sort—a domineering personality, ranking up by sheer nerve what he might lack in brains. But for his words the miner would have given the fellow no further thought.

"Say, Timmons," he burst forth nobly, and striding over to the desk, "the marshal tells me a dame blew in from New York tonight—is she registered here?"

The landlord shoved the book forward, with one finger on the last signature.

"Yep," he said shortly, "but she ain't the one you was lookin' for—I asked her that, first thing."

"Stella Donovan—huh! That's no name over I heard; what's she look like? Dark or light?"

"Waal, sorter medium, I should say; brown hair with a bit of red in it, an' a pair of gray eyes full of fun—some girl, to say nothin'."

The questioner struck his fist on the wood sharply.

"Well, what the devil do you suppose such a woman has come to this hole clear from New York for, Timmons? What's her game, anyhow?"

"Blessed if I know," and the proprietor scented himself on a high stool. "I didn't ask no questions like that; maybe the gent by the stove there might give yer all the information yer want. He brought her up from the depot, an' kin talk English. Say, Jim, this year is a short-horn from New York, named Benton, an' he seems ter be powerfully interested in skirts—Benton, Mr. Jim Westcott."

The two men looked at each other, the miner stepping slightly forward, and knocking the ashes out of his pipe. Benton laughed, assuming a semblance of good nature.

"My questions were prompted solely by curiosity," he explained, evidently not wholly at ease. "I was expecting a young woman, and thought this new arrival might prove to be my friend."

"Hardly," returned Westcott dryly. "As the landlord informed you, Miss Donovan is a lady."

If he expected this shot to take effect he was disappointed, for the grin never left Benton's face.

"Ah, a good joke; a very good joke, indeed. You misunderstand; this is altogether a business matter. I've heard rumors of that for a week past. What's the idea? Struck anything?"

Lacy, a long, rangy fellow, with a heavy mustache, and a scar over one eye, partially concealed by his hat-brim, grinned at the others as though at a good joke.

"No, nothing particular as yet," he answered. "But you here, an' I reckon that's just about as good. Tryin' ter keep it dark, wasn't yer? Never even thought we'd caught on."

"Oh, yes, I did; you flatter yourselves. I caught one of your stoat-plagues up the gulch yesterday, and more than ten days ago Moore and Edson made a trip into my tunnel while I happened to be away; they forgot to hide their trail. I know what you were up to, and you can all of you look for it."

"When your partner gets out here, I suppose," sneered Lacy. "He'll be here."

"Oh, will be? Well, he's a h— of a while coming. You wired him a month ago, and yer've written him twice since. Oh, I've got the cases on you all right, Westcott. I know you haven't got a cent left to go on with, and nowhere to get any except through him."

He laughed. "Ain't that right? Well, yer chances look mighty slim ter me just at present, of-fer. However, there's no light on yet; well yer behave yerself, an' let this man Benton alone if I find yer back yer gun?"

"There is no choice left me," "Sure; that's sensible enough; give it to him, Moore."

He broke the chamber, shaking the cartridges out into his palm; then handed the emptied weapon over to Westcott. His manner was purposely insulting, but the latter stood with lips firmly set, realizing his position.

"Now, then, go on over that an' sit down," continued Lacy. "Maybe, if yer wait long enough, that partner of yours might blow in. Come on, boys, the east side had man. There is nothing keeping you now from reaching it with me but the sight of this gun in my belt, and a suspicion in your mind that I may know how to use it. That suspicion is correct. Now you go back to your barroom, where you will find plenty of your own kind to associate with. It's going to be dangerous for you to hang around here any longer."

Benton felt the steady eyes upon him, but was carrying enough liquor to make him reckless. He stepped backward, feigning a laugh, watchful to catch Westcott off his guard.

"All right, then," he said, "I'll go get the drink; you can't bluff me."

Westcott's knowledge of the class alone brought to him the man's purpose. Benton's hand was in the pocket of his coat, and as he turned, apparently to leave the room, the cloth bagged. With one long forward the miner was at his throat. There was a report, a flash of flame, the speeding bullet striking the stove, and the next instant Benton, his hand still helplessly imprisoned within the coat pocket, was hurled back across a card table, the players scattering to get out of the way. All the pent-up dislike in Westcott's heart found expression in action; the despicable trick wrought him to a sudden fury, yet even then there came to him no thought of killing the fellow, no memory even of the loaded gun at his hip. He wanted to choke him, strike him with his hands.

"You dirty coward," he muttered fiercely. "So you thought the pocket trick was a new one out here, did you? Come, give the gun up! Oh! so there is some fight left in you? Then let's settle it here."

It was a struggle between two big, strong men—the one desperate, unscrupulous, brutal; the other angry enough, but reigning self-control! They crashed onto the floor, Westcott still retaining the advantage of position, and twice he struck, driving his clenched fist home. Suddenly he became aware that some one had jerked his revolver from its holster and, almost at the same instant a hard hand gripped the neck-band of his shirt and tore him loose from Benton.

"Here now—enough of that, Jim," said a voice sternly, and his hands rose instinctively as he recognized the gleam of two drawn weapons flashing him. "Help Benton up, Joe. Now, look yer, Mr. Billy Westcott, and the speaker shook his gun threateningly. "As it happens, we've jumped on a friend of ours, an' we naturally propose to take a hand in this game—you know me."

Westcott nodded, an unpleasant smile on his lips.

"I do, Lacy," he said coolly, "and that if there is any dirty work going on in this camp it is quite probable you and your gang are in it. Now listen; yer've got me covered, and that is my gun which Moore has in his hand. I cannot fight you alone and unarmed; but I can talk yet."

"I reckon yer can, if that's goin' ter do yer any good."

"So the La Rosita Mining company is about to be revived, is it? Eastern capital becoming interested. I've heard rumors of that for a week past. What's the idea? Struck anything?"

Lacy, a long, rangy fellow, with a heavy mustache, and a scar over one eye, partially concealed by his hat-brim, grinned at the others as though at a good joke.

"No, nothing particular as yet," he answered. "But you here, an' I reckon that's just about as good. Tryin' ter keep it dark, wasn't yer? Never even thought we'd caught on."

Westcott sat quietly in the chair as they filed out; then took the pipe from his pocket and filed it slowly. He realized his defeat, his helplessness, but his mind was already busy with the future.

DR. TOLD NURSE TO TAKE DRECO.

Crippled Up by Rheumatism So She Had To Hold On to Baristers. Feet Swollen, Limbs, Ankles, Elbows Full of Pain.

"I am writing to say a few words in praise of your wonderful medicine, Dreco. I have often been asked to endorse this or that medicine, but always refused, but Dreco is different," said Mrs. D. S. Simpkins of 1442 Law Ave., Evansville, Indiana.

"I have suffered greatly from rheumatism and been treated by excellent physicians, in a city I tried a change of climate but always my relief was temporary. While nursing I've had doctors pile me, saying I should be the one in bed with a nurse to attend me. My feet were so swollen and painful I could hardly keep my shoes on, my ankles and limbs were so sore and stiff I had a limp in my walk. I often had dark circles under my eyes and that tired look in them."

"Constipation was a source of great annoyance and I couldn't secure relief from it. I was often nauseated and had a repulsion at the sight of food."

"Today my feelings are entirely changed. I have taken two bottles of Dreco and I am so much better the doctor told me to keep on taking it. Every ache and pain is gone, the constipation is completely relieved. I am no longer nauseated but eat and relish every meal. Instead of being a sore, crippled creature, limping around, I am happy and can nurse cases today which I would have been forced to refuse before. I give all the credit for my grand relief to Dreco, and unhesitatingly recommend it to every one who suffers as I did." Free samples given.

Dreco is being specially introduced by The Rexall Store, Carl G. Ungert, proprietor, in Marion, and sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

THIS WILL INTEREST STOMACH SUFFERERS

Says Indigestion comes from an excess of hydrochloric acid.

A well-known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomachs—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like cabbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lump feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash, or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescent, and furthermore, to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the acid-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.—Adv.

GARIS' BEDTIME STORIES

UNCLE WIGGLY AND WOOLIE'S NIBBLES.

[BY HOWARD B. GARIS.]
[Copyright 1922, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.]

As Uncle Wiggly was hopping along through the fields one morning, wishing that spring would hurry and get warmer, and as he was thinking of some adventure he might have, all of a sudden a voice called:

"Oh, Uncle Wiggly! May I come with you?"

The bunny rabbit looked up and down, moving his pink, twinkling nose in a circle, but he saw no one.

"Oh, dear!" thought Mr. Longears. "This must be the Fuzzy Fox or the Woolie Wolf, hiding somewhere under a stone! He wants to come along with me so he can nibble my ears! Oh, dear!"

"May I come with you?" asked the voice again.

The bunny gentleman was just about to say "No" as bravely as he could, when there was a rustling in a bush nearby, and out of a hole which it partly covered came Woodie Chuck, the groundhog boy.

"Oh, Woodie!" exclaimed the bunny gentleman. "I'm so glad it's you. Of course, you may come with me! I was afraid you were a Fox!"

"I'm nearly as hungry as a Fox, or the Wolf, either!" whistled Woodie, as he waddled farther from the burrow hole where he and his brother, Waddie had spent the long, cold winter. "That's why I want to come along with you, Uncle Wiggly, because I'm so hungry! I want to do some nibbling!"

"Oh, dear me! Nibbling!" cried Uncle Wiggly, as he held his paws over his ears. "That word always makes me so nervous!"

"Well, you don't need to be afraid!" laughed Woodie. "You know we woodchucks, or groundhogs, only eat clover, grass and sometimes the bark of trees. We never nibble ears. And now as spring has come, and the green things are beginning to grow, I came out of the burrow to see what I could find to nibble. That's why I want to walk along with you."

"Oh, that's all right!" said Uncle Wiggly, with a friendly twinkle of his pink nose. "Come along, Woodie, and nibble as much as you please."

Together the woodchuck boy and the bunny gentleman went over the fields and through the woods. Here and there little bits of green grass were beginning to show, but there was not much. Uncle Wiggly, too, liked something fresh and green, and he and the groundhog boy nibbled all they could find.

Finally they came to a field in which were many big rocks. Woodie began searching around among the great stones for something good to nibble. At last he saw what he thought was a piece of cabbage leaf.

"Oh, here's something fine to nibble!" cried the groundhog boy. He took a few little nibbles, but, all of a sudden, a voice cried:

"Well, the very idea! You're eating my new bonnet!"

"When my baby was three years old, old pimper broke out on his face, under his eye, and later turned to ringworm. The ringworm was about the size of a fifty-cent piece, and itched and burned awfully. The skin was swollen and red."

"The trouble lasted about six weeks. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, the ringworm was completely healed."
